

Te Reo Māori 2023 Term 2 Week 7

Kia Kaha Te Reo Māori

Kei te pehea te āhua o te rangi?
What's the weather like today?

Kei te pupuhi te hau (windy)

Kei te mahana (warm)

Kei te paki (fine)

Kei te makariri (cold)

Kei te ua (rainy)

Kei te wera (hot)

Kei te hukapapa (snowy)

Kei te tau te kohu (foggy)

Kei te mākū (wet)

Kei te marangai (stormy)

NB: We can also shorten the answer /response just as we do in English to just - for example -" ua, paki, makariri,..”etc

This doubles the amount of answers anyone can give to the questions!

Takaparawhau/Bastion Point

May 25, 1978, marked a pivotal moment in New Zealand history – a day when Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei and their supporters were forcibly evicted from their land at Takaparawhau/Bastion Point. A lot has happened since then and the iwi invites people to reflect on that as they celebrate 45 years of resilience.

Ngāti Whatua Ōrākei staged a 506-day occupation of a plot of land in Central Auckland overlooking the Waitematā.

Takaparawhau had originally been Ngāti Whātua land, gifted to the Crown as a defence site during the 1885 Russian scare, according to NZ History.

In 1977 the Crown decided Takaparawhau would make a great spot for a subdivided private housing development. Members of Ngāti Whatua Ōrākei - along with many others from other iwi around Aotearoa - moved in and staged a 506-day occupation of Takaparawhau. It was a turbulent time and there were many standoffs during the occupation between the Māori protestors and both New Zealand Police and the New Zealand Army. The occupation would end in ugly scenes, but eventually Takaparawhau would be returned to Ngāti Whātua.

“I puta rā anō te kupu mō te ngākau aroha o tēnei hapū i tāna takoha i te katoa o te pokapū o Tāmaki Makaurau, mea rawa ake, i te raro pōtehetehē, kua rawa kore i ō mātou ake papa.”

“The story was finally out there about how this very generous hapū had gifted all of central Auckland and were turned into, in very quick time, paupers in our own land,” says Ngarimu Blair, deputy chairperson of the Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei Trust.

This year marks the 45th anniversary of the 506-day Takaparawhau/Bastion Point occupation.
